GARBAGE DUMP DISCUSSED WITH SANITARY BOARD

A committee from the Washington Township Chamber of Commerce met with the board of directors of the Union Sanitary District in Centerville Wednesday to discuss garbage disposal.

The Washington Township Chamber of Commerce has proposed that the sanitary district investigate the possibility of establishing and maintaining a suitable dump for disposal of refuse, exclusive of wet garbage. The board also had invited Al Gamba of the East Bay Garbage Co. to be present.

The committee from the Chamber expressed the view that there was a definite need for a suitable place where the people of the area could dispose of their accumulations of rubbish and trash.

They pointed out the difficulty encountered in trying to get someone to haul away any refuse other than garbage. The belief was expressed that with the population increasing as it is, the need will increase for such a refuse dump.

It was stated that people living in homes situated on small lots had no way of burning their trash and that a portion of the rubbish was such that it could not be burned. The practice of roadside dumping of rubbish along the roads of the township might be due, in part, to the lack of any facility for rubbish disposal. The Newark Chamber of Commerce has emphasized this fact.

SAYW LqqSanUnion?-bbarb s E

Conclusions reached at Wednesday's meeting were

1. The establishment of a refuse dump by the Union Sanitary District presents many difficulties, such as the cost involved, acquisition of property, and operation and maintenance.

2. If the district were to establish such a dump, it could only serve the people within the boundaries of the district.

3. At present, if anyone wants to dispose of rubbish, all that is necessary is to call the East Bay Garbage Co., phone Niles 7522, which will collect it.

WHOSE FACE IS RED?

High school teachers and personnel—not to mention the student body at large—were a trifle surprised (one might even say shocked) to read in last Friday's Township Register that their Senior play proved to be a hit with township audiences.

Not that it was surprising that "Our Miss Brooks" should be a hit. Oh no, it was a comedy. And they expected it to be a hit. However, they were surprised that township audiences had found it to be a hit, as no township audience had yet seen the high school production of "Our Miss Brooks."

The Register had just jumped the gun on the play by a week. Instead of playing last Thursday and Friday, as stated in last week's Register, it is playing this Thursday and Friday, February 14 and 15.

All The Register can say in the way of apology is: it has happened to other papers, even larger ones. We can also say we are sorry. We can also say, don't miss the play! It was a hit; it is a hit; it will be a hit. (Are we safe now?)

TOWNSHIP CLAIMS HILLVIEW ITS OWN

Niles is turning itself upside down and topsy-turvy tomorrow (Saturday) in preparation for one of the biggest events in its history.

Niles is putting out the welcome mat to residents of Hillview Crest, letting them know that they are not only welcomed into Washington Township but that their patronage and business is something to be desired.

Hillview Crest residents will be able to avail themselves tomorrow of free bus service to and from Niles. Their youngsters will be able to attend a free matinee in Niles. Niles merchants are offering free gifts and other attractions.

The high school band will play. The bank will stay open. The library will stay open.

It will be a big day for Niles. A big day for Washington Township which will formally take a new community into its orbit.

FARM BUREAU SETS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual dinner of the Alameda County Farm Bureau, sponsored by the Eden-Washington Center, will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 26, at the cafeteria at Washington High School.

Bert Buzzini, radio director for the California Farm Bureau Federation, whose daily farm news commentary, "The Voice of California Agriculture," is heard by radio listeners at 6:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, will be principal speaker.

A long time news broadcaster, Bert Buzzini's work with C.F.B.F. has been the development of a daily service to farm radio listeners in which he tells the work of the Farm Bureau as a dynamic force for the benefit of farm people.

Buzzini will address the Alameda County Farm Bureau Annual meeting on the "History, Organization and Purpose of Farm Bureau."

Entertainment will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, who will give vocal selections, and by Mrs. Al Knott, pianist.

General chairman of the event is Manuel Abreu of the Alviso District. Assisting him are Earl Wallace, Dick Johnsen, President Earl Wallace, Vice-President Bruno Orsetti, and Secretary John Soito.

4-LANE HIGHWAY PLANNED BY STATE FOR FREMONT AVE.

Eventual expansion of Fremont Avenue, connecting Centerville and the Niles-Mission San Jose Highway, as a four-lane divided highway has been indicated by the California Division of Highways, according to R. J. Wright of Irvington, chairman of the Alameda County Planning Commission.

Indication that widening of the road is planned by the state was made in connection, with the Division of Highway's recommendations in regard to future subdivisions.

The state asks that the County Planning Commission "protect a future 106-foot right-of-way which will permit construction of a four-lane divided road with 22-foot center division, 8-foot parking lanes and 10-foot sidewalk areas without conflict with the newer improvements.

"This can best be achieved by establishing future width lines 7 feet north and 49 feet south of the existing right-of-way lines. Set-backs for off-street parking in the case of commercial developments and for front yard space in residential developments should be in addition thereto."

The state's suggestions were made in a letter to the planning body by Assistant State Highway Engineer John H. Skeggs. The matter arose in connection with a proposed subdivision by Dr. E. M. Grimmer of property north of the County Building approximately a mile from Centerville.

Futher recommendations were made by Engineer Skeggs in reference to planned development along Fremont Avenue.

"The spread of roadside ribbon commercial development along main traffic thoroughfares," he stated, "results ultimately in a most undesirable situation for both the motoring public and the business man or property owner."

He went on to explain: "The side friction, turning movements and other conflicts resulting from motorists maneuvering and parking, or attempting to, can do more to lower the traffic carrying capacity, reasonable speeds and safety of road than almost any other set of factors."

Supporters of zoning may find strong support in the state engineer's further recommendations.

"It is suggested," he continued, "that these trends can be controlled by proper land-use planning and zoning by local authorities—and by them only.

"Our recommendation is that business be confined to presently established areas in and adjacent to Centerville and Niles. Where community planning evidences a need for more than an expansion of these areas it should be in the nature of a planned, concentrated shopping centers off the highway."

And Engineer Skeggs gave sound rebuttal to opponents of zoning:

"The old conception of main, inter-regional traffic arteries, as the state highways are, being a logical place for business frontage has been proven illogical in so many instances that it should now be recognized as a basic fact and guarded against."

COLEY ELECTED TO PRESIDENCY

Jack Coley, manager of the Safeway Store at Centerville, was elected Tuesday to the office of president of the Centerville Chamber of Commerce.

Other officers elected are: vice-president, W. K. Clark; recording secretary, LeRoy Broun; financial secretary, Louis Cardoza, and treasurer, Erle Hygelund. Directors nominated are: Allen G. Norris, L. S. Williams and Leonard Miller.

Delegates to the Washington Township Chamber of Commerce are Harry Weber, Allan Walton and Dallas Paul.

New officers will be installed in March.

Attention of the Centerville businees men was called to the visit of the Red Cross mobile unit for blood procurement at Niles Monday, Feb. 18. All were asked to give blood.

The Chamber voted to ask California senators and congressmen to take action to restore funds to the Army Engineers so that the survey of Alameda Creek flood problems can be completed. It was pointed out by Secretary Eugene Manning that appropriations by Congress to the Army Engineers are being reduced, with consequent threat to the local project.

Dues for the Chamber were set at $10 per year, rescinding a previous decision to set a $5 fee for non-business members.

School Tax Boost Is Urged in Centerville

FREE TICKETS AT BLOOD DONOR DAY NEXT MONDAY

"It would be wonderful if every adult in Washington Township could say he had a 'blood relation' in Korea."

This was the significant statement made by Mrs. Allan Walton of Centerville this week in her monthly plea for blood donors, to aid our wounded boys in Korea. Blood procurement day is next Monday, Feb. 18. Mrs. Walton is acting blood procurement chairman for the township.

"Everyone who has given a pint of blood can boast that he has a 'blood relation' in Korea," Mrs. Walton went on to explain.

As an added inducement, Mrs. Walton stated this week that every blood donor next Monday would be given a ticket on a drawing for a home appliance, the drawing to take place in San Francisco on March 26.

"We here in Washington Township consider the drawing only a bonus. Our people have responded so well in the past that I know they need no such incentive. Their own generosity and interest in our wounded boys overseas is incentive enough. So we offer the tickets—not actually as an inducement—but rather as something to generate more interest in the blood procurement program," said the chairman.

She asserted that at least 200 donors are needed from the township next Monday. Those who can, should make appointments with town chairmen. Those who are unable to make appointments can go to the Veterans Memorial Building at any time on Monday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The following are the town chairmen: Mrs. Wayne Day, Centerville; Mrs. Irving Hird, Niles, Mrs. Bud Patterson, Newark; Mrs. Lloyd Evans, Irvington; Mrs. Bernie Joseph, Decoto; Mrs. H. C. Spurlock, Alvarado; Mrs. Oscar Pohl, Warm Springs; Mrs. M. J. Overacker, Mission San Jose.

Mrs. Ralph Goodwin of Centerville is assistant blood donor chairman for the township.

Three Washington Township residents lost their drivers' licenses this week, according to information released by the Department of Motor Vehicles. They are: Marion J. Garrison and Harold L. Laws of Niles, and Neil Rasmussen of Decoto.

LOCAL SOLDIER IS MENTIONED IN NEWS

A soldier from Niles was mentioned in a dispatch from Korea last week. He is Sven Nicklasson. And he can well be proud.

Capt. W. D. McGlasson, writing for the Associated Press, had this item in his dispatch:

"I waited a few minutes longer while the platoon moved out on their last lap, then fell in at the tail end of the column.

"As we reached the crest I heard the unmistakable accent of Cpl. Sven Nicklasson, of Niles, Calif., Swedish-born platoon medic.

"They went up the hill like soldiers, not like kids, in spite of their youth and experience."

Cpl. Nicklasson is the brother of Richard Nicklasson, co-owner of the Niles Machine & Tool Works. He came from Sweden four years ago and prior to his induction into service was employed at the Kraftile Company.

The news item containing the incident was noticed by Postmaster Edward E. Enos, who read it in the Los Angeles Mirror while attending a meeting in Southern California of the California Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters.

Voters of the Centerville Elementary School District will decide the issue of increasing the maximum tax rate from 90 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to $1.50 at a special election to be held April 4. Explanation given by trustees for bringing the matter to a vote is "the rising operation and maintenance costs."

The trustees said, however, that actual increase in tax rate proposed for the coming year will be considerably under the maximum, if approved. The safety margin is needed to allow for future contingencies. They point out that many other school districts are meeting the problems of increased costs by the same means.

More funds are needed to meet salary increases for teachers and personnel, to replace the present bus with a larger one, to provide a garage for the bus and to make necessary ground and building improvements.

Election officials will be Mary L. S. George, inspector, and Helen C. Rogers and Mary A. Brazil, judges.

Bids for the construction of the new school on Thornton Avenue will be opened by trustees on February 27 at 8 p.m., at the school office.

Specifications for construction prepared by Birge M. Clark and Walter Stromquist, Palo Alto architects, may be seen by prospective bidders at the school.

The new school will be located on an 11-acre site three-quarters of a mile west of Highway 17 on Thornton Avenue. It will consist of five classrooms and a kindergarten.

The district will receive approximately $200,000 in state funds toward the construction of the new plant, purchase of furnishings and playground fences. The site has been purchased for $33,000.

Members of the board are Judge Allen G. Norris, Allan E. Walton and Mrs. Mary G. Rodrigues.

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

CASSEROLES HELP YOU SOLVE THE HOLIDAY GUEST PROBLEM

Everyone's in a visiting mood this time of year. You never know when friends will pop in—and stay for dinner. Or when the man of the house will telephone to say he's bringing some of the office gang home to see the Christmas tree—and, incidentally, to eat.

So this is the season when casserole dishes are a homemaker's best friend. Put together in the morning, they can be served easily from noon to midnight.

Here are three varied casserole recipes planned by the General Electric Consumers Institute to meet your holiday needs perfectly.

Meat Pie with Lattice Topping

Tested in the G-E Consumers Institute

- 2 tablespoons fat, salad oil or melted shortening
- 2 cups cooked meat, cut in ¾-inch cubes
- 1⅓ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups thin leftover gravy
- ½ teaspoon dried rosemary
- 1 cup cooked carrots, cut in 1-inch strips
- 1 cup cooked peas
- 8 very small cooked onions
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- ¼ cup grated sharp processed cheese
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
- 1 tablespoon minced green pepper
- ⅓ cup milk

Heat fat in skillet at high heat. Lower heat, add meat and brown slightly. Add two tablespoons flour (⅛ cup) and ½ teaspoon salt and blend. Add gravy and rosemary and stir constantly until mixture thickens. Lower heat and add carrots, peas and onions. Cover and heat while making biscuit topping.

Sift together 1 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and baking powder. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or knives until mixture resembles fine meal. Add cheese, pimiento and green pepper and mix. Add milk and mix with fork to make soft dough. Turn onto lightly-floured pastry cloth or board and knead dough about 25 strokes Roll into rectangle ¼-inch thick and cut with fancy pastry cutter or knife into strips ½-inch wide.

Pour hot meat mixture into 10 by 6 by 2-inch baking dish and arrange biscuit strips on top in lattice design. Bake in 400°F oven 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Mexicali Corn Cheese Bake

Tested in the G-E Consumers Institute

- ¾ pound (or 18 slices) processed cheddar cheese
- 3 cups whole kernel corn, drained
- 6 slices thin-sliced white bread with crusts removed
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon tabasco sauce
- 2½ cups tomato puree

Place 6 slices of cheese in 12 by 8 by 2-inch baking dish. Spread corn evenly over cheese and cover corn with 6 more slices of cheese. Cover second layer of cheese with bread slices and top with remaining cheese. Combine other ingredients and pour over mixture in baking dish. Let stand 1 hour and then bake in oven 325°F 45 minutes. Makes 6 servings. This recipe may be baked in six individual casseroles, layering corn, cheese and bread as directed above.

Salmon Pie

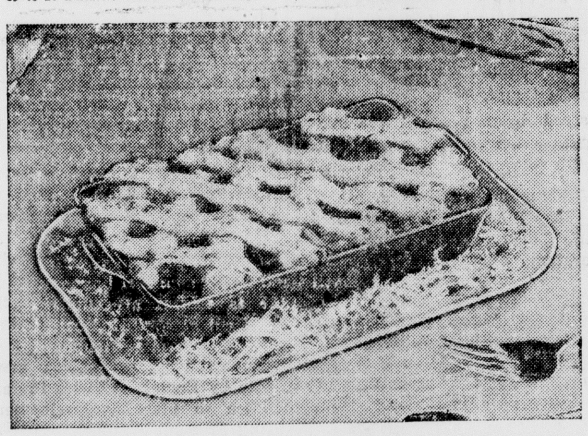
Tested in the G-E Consumers Institute

- 1 1-pound can red salmon, drained
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup liquid (combined salmon liquor and milk)
- 1 cup diced cooked potatoes
- 1 recipe pastry for two-crust pie
- 2 cups hot cooked peas
- 1½ cups hot medium white sauce

Lemon wedges

Remove bones and skin from salmon; break into large flakes. Sprinkle lemon juice over salmon and let stand. Melt shortening in large skillet at high heat; lower heat, add onion and saute until yellow. Add flour and salt, blend, then gradually add liquid and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from range. Combine salmon and potatoes, fold lightly into above mixture, and cool.

Roll out half of pastry dough into circle ⅛-inch thick and 2 inches larger than a 9-inch pie plate. Ease pastry into pie plate, being careful not to stretch it. Fold cut edge onto edge of pie plate to form a rim and flute rim. Fill pie shell with cooled salmon mixture. Roll remaining dough for top crust. Cut a circle of pie crust using bottom of pie plate as pattern. Cut circle into 6 pie-shaped wedges and place wedges on salmon filling, leaving a space between each piece. Bake in oven 425°F 35-40 minutes. Garnish with parsley. Combine peas and white sauce. Pour over wedges of salmon pie. Serve with lemon wedges. Makes 6 servings.



Put together in the morning, when the hectic holiday activity is at low ebb, this tasty meat pie with lattice topping can be enjoyed by guests at noon or midnight.

SYMPTOMS

I've finally found out about flu. I know what the symptoms are, because I've been in bed all week from it. The first symptom, apparently, is that you start writing reviews about plays, just as though they'd already happened, when actually they are a week away. This symptom goes right along with symptom 2, which is advancing dates on practically every event that comes along.

These two symptoms aren't so bad when you're a private individual, but when you write for a newspaper, they can get you into a heap of trouble.

My head still hasn't cleared from the flu yet, so there are apt to be other "interesting" little items in the paper this week that will be hard to explain away.

It was rather interesting being in bed all week. I mean, I saw things I hadn't noticed before, as I lay there looking out my bedroom window.

After a while you get so that even a spider spinning a web becomes an object of interest. (We have no television) And a bird pecking around in the grass outside looms as a big event, as time drags on. Two birds pecking around in the grass practically assure you of a hilarious time.

I reached the very low ebb of boredom when I found myself wishing the neighbors' chickens would come back over in our yard so the dog could chase them. No doubt if this had occurred, however, my temperature would have gone back up, as the excitement would have proved too much for me.

SOMETHING MISSING

And here I've been telling everybody that Niles has everything!

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

IF YOU WANT TASTY VEAL FOR DINNER, COOK IT SLOWLY—AND ON A LOW HEAT

When you're planning the meat in your menus from now on through the spring, don't overlook the versatility of veal.

Veal, which is young beef, is one of the more tender meats, with very little fat; it requires long, slow cooking at a low temperature to the well-done stage. Veal can be roasted, braised or cooked in water as veal stew; it should not be broiled, panbroiled or seared quickly.

Here are three General Electric Consumers Institute recipes for veal entrees, using three different cuts of veal —steak, cutlets and veal shoulder.

Veal Cutlet Supreme

Tested in the G-E Consumers Institute

1 pound veal steak (1½-¾ inch thick)
Sifted bread crumbs (about 1 cup)
1 egg, beaten with 1 tablespoon water
¼ cup shortening
1 medium onion, sliced
1 teaspoon paprika
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup sour cream

Cut veal into 6 pieces for serving. Dip in crumbs, then in beaten egg and again in crumbs. Melt shortening in large skillet on a high heat. Cook onions in skillet until yellow, stirring occasionally; remove from skillet. Place veal in skillet and brown on both sides. Place veal and onion in greased 2-quart casserole. Combine paprika, salt, pepper and sour cream. Pour over veal. Cover tightly. Bake in oven 325°F. for 1½ hours. Makes 6 servings.

Veal Scallopini

Tested in the G-E Consumers Institute

1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme
1 8-ounce can prepared tomato sauce (about ⅞ cup)
4 frozen veal cutlets, ¼-inch thick (1 package)
1 small green pepper, cut in strips
2 medium onions, sliced
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms (packed in about ⅓ cup liquor)

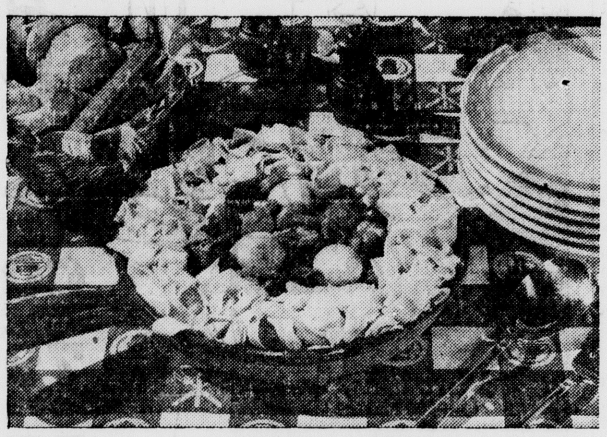
Combine flour, salt and thyme. Add tomato sauce gradually, stirring until smooth. Heat large skillet on a high heat. Unwrap and separate frozen veal cutlets. Place across bottom of skillet. Add onions, green pepper, tomato sauce mixture and mushrooms with liquor. Cover and cook on a high heat until steaming. Switch to a low heat and cook 25 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Veal and Noodles

Tested in the G-E Consumers Institute

1 pound veal shoulder (excluding bone)
¼ cup shortening
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons paprika
9 cups water
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cups peeled small onions
1 cup ¼-inch slices carrots
½ cup diced celery
10 ounces medium noodles (about 2-2½ cups)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 green peppers

Cut veal in 1-inch cubes. Melt shortening in large skillet on high heat. Add meat and saute until lightly browned. Combine flour, 2 teaspoons salt, pepper and paprika, sprinkle over meat and stir until blended. Add 1 cup water, Worcestershire sauce, onions, carrots and celery. Cover and when steaming, switch to low heat. Cook 25 minutes. After meat mixture has cooked 15 minutes, place 2 quarts water and 1 teaspoon salt in 3-quart saucepan. Bring to boil on high heat. Add noodles gradually to keep water boiling. Switch to medium heat and boil 10-12 minutes. Drain noodles, add butter and let melt. Toss noodles lightly to mix with butter. Remove core and cut green peppers in ½-inch strips. Add to meat mixture in skillet. Cover and cook 5-10 minutes longer until green peppers are tender. Serve meat mixture over buttered noodles. Makes 6 servings.



Veal shoulder, cut in cubes, forms the basis for this attractive all-in-one-dish meal, which combines the meat with noodles, onions, carrots, celery, peppers and seasoning to make a tasty entree.

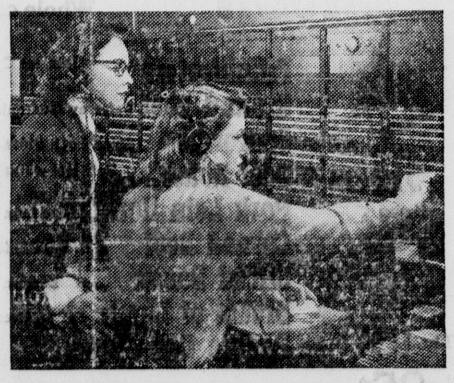
HOME ARTS SECTION MEET

The hostesses for the Home Arts Section of the Washington Township Country Club, held Tuesday evening at the club house, were Mrs. Marie Vervais, Mrs. Theo Overacker and Mrs. Edith Mackintosh. The usual business meeting followed the dinner.

Ann was fascinated by her introduction to a busy telephone office.

Ann White—and the Spirit of Service

Ann White could be the girl next door... or any of the thousands of capable young women who decide each year to make their first job a telephone job. Her first day was exciting, and a bit bewildering, as she began her training as an operator. But soon she gained confidence, learned to meet many situations with poise and skill. She began to feel the importance of getting every call through... the "spirit of service" shared by telephone people everywhere... the feeling which is perhaps the most important ingredient of good telephone service.



One unforgettable day, not long after she began handling real calls, a frightened little voice on Ann's line cried: "I'm lost. Could you find my Daddy for me?" Ann did, of course. Such things often happen in the telephone business, and often we receive grateful letters telling us about them. We like to hear these good reports about our operators, our installers, and others who meet our customers directly. For they tell us that you recognize the "spirit of service"... so much a part of day-to-day telephone work... so important in making your telephone ever more valuable to you.

Your telephone is one of today's best bargains

You can seldom put a price tag on a telephone call... for it may save a life, close a business deal, or it may be just routine. But it's good to know that, even in these days of high prices on most things, your telephone service remains one of today's best bargains.

A-BOMB DISASTER TOLD BY WITNESS

"Suddenly there came a bright light It was just like looking into another sun . . . It was so very bright and yellow in color . . . It got very warm for just a few minutes after the flash. I started to run . . . Suddenly there came the noise. . . . When I heard that sound I threw myself flat . . .

"I lay on the ground about 10, maybe 15 seconds while the terrible wind from the bomb explosion broke all the windows . . . Everything was flying through the air. . . . Broken glass . . . pieces of metal . . . boards . . . everything was falling all around me . . ."

This is the beginning of the story of a young man who survived the first atomic attack in history — Hiroshima, August 6, 1945.

He is Jack Dairiki, now 21, a native of Sacramento and a student at Los Angeles City College.

As the guest of Maj. Gen Walter M. Robertson, state director of civil defense, young Dairiki related the dramatic story during the Office of Civil Defense statewide broadcast recently.

Reviewing the graphic recital, General Robertson pointed out that knowing the fundamentals of civil defense saved the lives of many in Hiroshima that day.

"Japan did develop an excellent civil defense plan," General Robertson said. "It taught self-protection and mutual aid. But they didn't start until after the first fire bombs fell on their cities.

"We cannot afford to wait until the first one falls to start our preparedness."

Dairiki related that in 1941, he was taken to Japan to visit his grandparents. Prevented by the war from returning to the United States he was placed in school and, eventually, with fellow students, assigned to a work-gang in a rifle factory.

He was on his way to work when the attack came.

Relating what happened after the first flash and explosion, he said:

"First of all, I couldn't see anything. The air was so full of dust nobody could see."

He made his way to a cave shelter where, with others, he remained most of the day. Later he went to his grandfather's place.

"Fires burned for three days before people were able to put them out. Many city blocks were completely burned—nothing remained but ruins.

"Even two miles from the center of the explosion the houses were all leaning in one direction from the blast."

Dairiki attributed his survival to civil defense training.

"It was the training I had in how to protect myself that kept me from getting badly hurt — maybe getting killed," he said. "If I hadn't dropped flat on the ground I could have been killed."

Next week's Office of Civil Defense broadcast will present a Japanese-American girl who also survived the Hiroshima atomic bombing.

OLD VALLEJO HOME, ONCE SCENE OF GAIETY, NOW NOTHING BUT A MEMORY

By PAUL POWER

THE VALLEJO HOME

In 1840* Don Jose de Jesus Vallejo, an elder brother of the famous General Mariano Vallejo, built his adobe mansion in Mission San Jose on the corner directly opposite the church. It was an impressive, two story structure built in the style that we have come to know as Monterey Colonial. A long, low house of eighteen rooms, it was built of adobe brick with walls three feet thick and surrounded by a two storied veranda. Its floors were of tile, and interlocking red tile covered the roof.

Castillian roses, growing over its walls and partially covering the roof, were a riot of color in the spring and summer. Years later, Maria Guadalupe Vallejo was to write nostalgically of the huge olive and fig trees that sheltered the house and of the flower filled garden.

Access was given to the upper story by an outside stairway. All cooking was done in an outbuilding set some yards behind the main house—a common practice among the more affluent Spanish Californians.

The low ceilinged rooms with their deep set, small-paned windows were furnished with pieces of mahogany and walnut sent from Boston by Clipper ship. In 1850 Don Vallejo bought for his daughters a piano that was quite possibly the earliest piano in Alameda County.

This gracious house was known the length and breadth of the state for its lavish hospitality. Through its doors passed officials of the Mexican government and members of the Spanish-Californian Aristocracy—the Peraltas, the Pachecos, the Alvisos, the Higuerras, the Sunols, and numerous others.

And here Don Vallejo lived out his declining years in an ebbing tide of prosperity. The Rancho Arroyo de la Alameda was gone, broken up into numerous fertile farms of the American settlers. The flour mill he had built was in the hands of strangers. All the glory had gone from the Mission of San Jose of which he had once been administrator. Even the brisk prosperity that the early American settlers had brought had ended with the location of the railroad two miles away.

When the family finances became strained Don Vallejo's concent trained daughters gave piano lessons to the daughters of the American settlers. Among these pupils were the daughters of Thomas Scott of Niles, Lucy Twohig Carey, Margaret Twohig Norris, Mary, Lucinda and Katherine Power, and many others.

We are indebted to the late Katherine Power Twohig for a description of the interior of the Vallejo home. She recalled the low ceilinged rooms with their whitewashed walls and deep set windows, the high beds with their elaborate silk quilts and lace trimmed pillow shams. She remembered the long parlor with its gracefully carved sofa and chairs covered with shabby haircloth, the heavily framed family portraits and religious paintings in oil, the soft green light of the rooms when the slatted blinds were closed against the summer sun.

"We looked forward to our weekly lessons," Katherine Power Twohig recalled, "for after they were over Mrs. Kern (Maria Encarnacion Vallejo) would play for us on the big, square piano—mostly old Spanish songs. The old Indian woman who worked for them would bring in refreshments—hot chocolate in winter and cool drinks in summer—and rich little seeded cakes. In the nice weather the windows would all be open and the whole room would be filled with the scent of the roses."

Poverty became an ever present guest at the crumbling old mansion. In an effort to make ends meet the Vallejos were forced to rent out part of their house to the John Turners and to Thomas Wauhab who used one of the corner rooms for a butcher shop.

In 1882, Don Jose Vallejo, who had suffered a severe stroke in 1875, was forced to go to Monterey County in an effort to save what remained of the original Vallejo family grant there. He died in Salinas on January 6, 1882.

The following year the widowed Dona Soledad Vallejo sold the family home to Peter Maguire for $1900. Maguire tore the house down in 1890 to erect a saloon on the property. Today the Mission Gift Shop of Miss Olive Hyde occupies the spot.

In 1904 Miss Maria Guadalupe Vallejo died in San Francisco. Among her things was found the brass key to the old mansion, wrapped in a scrap of paper upon which she had written some verses, "The Key to My Old Home." Excessively sentimental though this bit of victorian verse is, yet it is expressive of a poignant grief felt by this valiant woman over the loss of her home. Like her father, this courageous gentlewoman is symbolic of a generous, hospitable people who were dispossessed.

Today no remaining trace of Don Jose de Jesus Vallejo's proud mansion now exists. Not even a marker reminds us of the site's vanished glory. It has passed into oblivion with the scent of the Castillian roses on its adobe walls, with the sound of its music and its forgotten Spanish laughter.

*Some authorities state that the house was built in 1850. Don Vallejo was given a deed to the home site on August 6, 1840, by Governor Alvarado after the government degree of 1838 allowed private persons to build on mission lands.

DANISH EXCHANGE STUDENT IS IN NILES

WANTS TO LEARN ABOUT FARM METHODS

A young blonde woman, with an accent that bespoke a Scandinavian origin, walked into The Register office last week seeking information concerning rooms for rent.

The accent was intriguing, charming. Not often does one hear it in Niles. Further conversation—and tactful inquiry—brought forth the fact that Miss Aase Frigaard, an exchange university student from Aarhus, Denmark, is in Niles employed as a trainee at the Kimber Poultry Farms.

"You see," she explained in halting, though perfect, English, "Denmark does not pay the tuition for its exchange students. So I go to University a semester, then work a semester. I have just finished a semester at the University of California at Berkeley."

Prior to that time the young coed had worked on a farm in Delaware, had attended the University of California at Davis for a semester, and had also worked on a dairy ranch in Lassen County. She has been in this country a year and a half.

Strange work for a coed, working on a farm, you say? In this case, it isn't. You see, Miss Frigaard expects, some day, to be a farm advisor in her own country.

She went to the Danish Agricultural College there. But America, she'd heard, had advanced methods, some, perhaps, that even Denmark—known as an agricultural country—didn't even possess. So she'd go to America.

She wanted, especially, to find out about poultry raising in America. That explains her employment at Kimber's. "I want to learn as much as I can about poultry-raising in this country," she said earnestly. "There are many new ways, new ideas, that I can take back to my own country."

Miss Frigaard, who admited that her biggest problem since she'd come to America was in meeting her living expenses, expects to return to Denmark in July.

"Yes, it's been difficult at times—in a strange land, among strangers—trying to make my way. But I don't mind work—." She smiled, and there was something about her straight shoulders and clear, confident eyes that was reminiscent of the undaunted spirit that has made famous in history her forbears, the Vikings.

NILES COLLEGE STUDENT WILL PLAY IN CONCERT

Edward J. Wright of Niles will appear with the San Jose State College Concert Band when it presents its annual winter concert February 19 in the Morris Dailey Auditorium on the college campus. Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wright of 400 Orchard Drive, Niles.

The 68-piece band is under the direction of Robert P. Olson, assistant professor of music. The program, starting at 8:15 p.m., will include compositions by Bach, von Weber, Ralph Vaughn Williams, Mozart, Rabel and Eric Coates.

HUSKIES TROUNCE JAMES LICK HIGH; TAKE EARLY LEAD

By BOB HIRD

The Washington Huskies, who are getting better and better as the season progresses, handed the James Lick Comets a trouncing of 64 to 43 last Friday night in the Huskie gym.

The Washington B's also earned a victory over the Comet B's 45 to 18.

The Huskies' first five, who sat out the fourth quarter, played one of their best games of the season. They garnered many buckets on their fast break.

Both the Huskies and the Comets played nip and tuck ball for most of the first half, with the local team never leading more than four points. Then with about one minute remaining in the half, the Huskies garnered a quick eight points.

The second half was all Washington. The Huskies had compiled a 49-30 lead at the end of the third quarter, and then the Huskie reserves finished the trouncing.

Jim Bolivia, 6-foot forward of the Huskies, was the big gun of the evening. He racked up 16 points, 10 of which were in the second quarter.

Lee Walton, 6-foot-3 Huskie guard, helped the local cause throughout the game as he did a marvelous job on his tip-ins.

Fans who have seen Walton play, have wondered why he wears the white gloves with the fingers cut off. This helps him in his tipping.

The Huskies are now tied for second place, with a 3-1 record.

The Washington Puppies, who had it a little rough this season as far as injuries go, came through with a convincing victory over the Lick B's.

The Comet B's were no competition for the Puppies in the first half, as they scored only five digits. The Puppies' reserves played most of the second half.

Raul Orozco and Frank Galvan, Puppie forwards, won scoring honors as they scored 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Tonight, the Huskies will travel to Mountain View in a contest that will decide who will capture the title.

BEARCATS BEAT RAILROADERS TO MAKE NINTH WIN

By TONY ROGERS

The Bear Cat Club of Centerville made it nine straight wins in the East Oakland League by dumping United Railway Workers 15 to 9, Sunday, at McConnell Field.

They have one more game to play and if they win will have the championship. A loss wlil call for a play-off of the second half.

Harold Slater pitched for the Bear Cats. He struck out 12 and walked 11 men. He was in hot water several times during the game. He lost a five-run lead in the second by walking 3 batters and giving up two triples along with a steal home.

But the lead went back to Centerville in the third, 7 to 6, and stayed in their hands as they scored in every inning except the ninth for the rest of the game.

A three-man scoring spree by Railway was their last effort to overtake the Bear Cats. Luce and Travers, Railway's pitchers, gave up 18 walks and fanned 11 batters.

Don Lemos led his teammates at bat with a double and two singles in six times. Len Smith and Stan Roderick had two for five. Garcia and Faria had two-base hits along with Lemos.

Next Sunday the Bear Cats play United Auto Workers at McConnell Field at 2 p.m.

2 TOWNSHIP P.T.A.'s WIN HIGH AWARDS

Out of five awards given in the 16th District of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers for publicity record books, two of the awards were presented last week to the Washington Union High School and the Newark Elementary School P.T.A. units. The awards were for the 1950-51 year book.

During that time Mrs. William H. Chivers was president and Mrs. G. G. Rehrig, publicity chairman, for the High School unit. In Newark Mrs. John Kettman was president during that year and Mrs. Ernest Phippen was the publicity chairman. This was the first time Newark had ever assembled a record book.

There are 35 units in the 16th District and the two local units can be justifiably proud of their achievement.

STATE GROWS THIRD OF TRUCK CROPS

California produced one out of every three tons of truck crops canned and frozen in the United States in 1951.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reported that the state's vegetable growers doubled their production and shipped a record 2,501,900 of the 7,505,600 tons of vegetables sold to processors last year throughout the nation. The 1951 California output exceeded the state's previous high mark of 1,554,620 tons established in 1947. In 1950 the state produced 1,128,400 tons or about one-fifth the national total.

P. G. & E. ISSUES 'NEVER' LIST FOR KITE FLYING

The yearly "never-never" list for kite-fliers in Northern and Central California was issued this week.

Stressing the fact that "electricity and kites" don't mix—instead sometimes bring injury and death—Pacific Gas and Electric Co. lists eight "nevers" that it hopes will keep kite-flying safe for kids.

Already this year P. G. and E. has had one report of injury to a youngster who attempted to disengage his kite from a power line.

As usual, the company is printing thousands of copies of its interesting and entertaining full-color comic book entitled, "Having Fun with Kites." The book tells the history of kite flying, describes the varieties of kites and how to fly them safely, and contains patterns and instructions for building kites.

The comic books, which are now being circulated among children at schools and through city recreation departments, are also available free at all P. G. and E. offices. Kites should not be flown, says the company, without thorough knowledge of the dangers and the proper safety precautions.

The company's list of "nevers" follows

Never fly a kite near electric or trolly wires.

Never climb poles to untangle a kite.

Never let a kite go over radio or TV aerials.

Never build or buy a kite with metal or wire in the frame or tail.

Never use tinsel string, wire, or any kind of twine that has a metallic substance. Use plain cotton or linen cord.

Never run across streets or highways while flying kites.

Never touch fallen electric wires. Report them to the P G. and E.

Never fly a kite when it is raining. A wet string is a conductor of electricity.

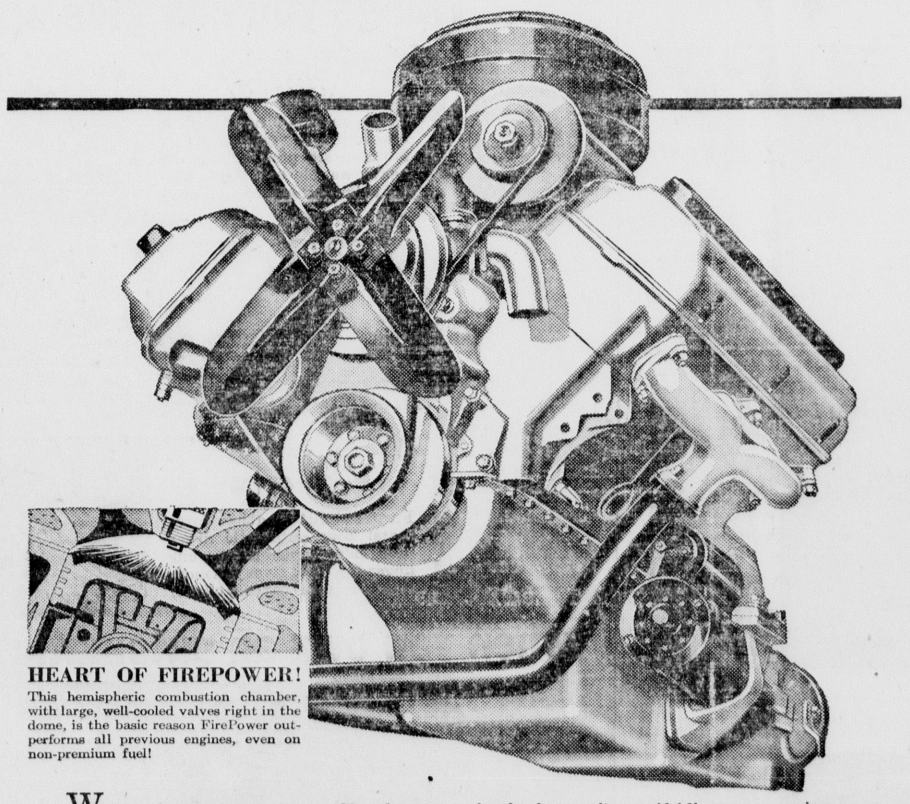
CHRYSLER V-8 ENGINE!



HEART OF FIREPOWER!
This hemispheric combustion chamber, with large, well-cooled valves right in the dome, is the basic reason FirePower outperforms all previous engines, even on non-premium fuel!

WHETHER you plan to buy a Chrysler or not, we cordially invite you to drive this revolutionary Chrysler FirePower V-8 engine. Only FirePower performance can possibly tell you what it is like. We want you to have that experience. The FirePower engine is a basic new design so advanced it can meet rising performance needs for years to come. Today it delivers 180 horsepower, even on non-premium fuel, and when desirable with simple changes in manifolding, compression, and carburetion the horsepower can be raised to 250 . . . or over 300, as in the experimental Chrysler K-310 car. Naturally, others will imitate this Chrysler achievement, at least in part. We honestly believe that the FirePower engine will outperform any other car in America . . . and we invite you to learn the new standard in engine performance Chrysler has set by driving it yourself.

"Why shouldn't you haul the other fellow's oil?"

One of the things people ask about Standard is why we do not let other oil companies use all of our tankers, marine terminals, and pipelines. They say, "Why shouldn't you haul the other fellow's oil?"

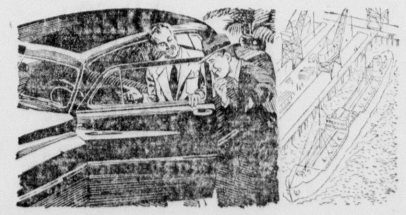
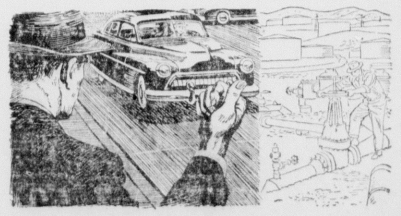
The answer to that question is that we're mighty busy hauling our own, meeting our regular obligations to our customers. Standard just can't share all of its transportation equipment with other companies. And it's unfair to ask us to do it. It's like asking you to let everybody else use your car.



You go out and buy a car for yourself and your family—a car big enough for your needs. So with Standard. We provide whatever facilities it takes to handle our crude oil and keep delivering our finished products where and when they're needed, to customers who depend on us for service.



Now suppose you're driving your car and a hitchhiker thumbs a ride. You pick him up only if you want to. The choice is yours. So again with Standard. In our pipelines within a state, crossing only privately-owned land, and in our tankers, we may choose to carry only our own oil.

But the way some people seem to want it, our freedom of choice would be gone. It's as if you were to be forced to stop and pick up everybody who lifted a thumb at you. We'd be required to carry anybody's oil in these tankers and pipelines, even if our own had to be set aside.

In time, if your car were taken over like that, you'd have to buy another for your own use. Once again, so with Standard. If we were forced to carry competitors' oil, we'd have to buy or build additional facilities to handle our own. Result: increased costs to us, higher prices to you.

When they're needed for national defense, Standard makes its private facilities available for public use. But we can't do it as a general rule. We would lose our efficiency —a loss to you, our customers, as well as ourselves. We don't believe you want it that way.

FEBRUARY'S GIANTS

The two greatest figures in American history — Washington and Lincoln — were not only born in the same month but narrowly missed having the same birth date. By the calendar in use in 1732, Washington was born on February 11.

Both of these men faced crises in which the very existence of the nation was at stake. And both showed a profound faith in God by turning to Him in prayer during the darkest hours.

But aside from the nearness of their birthdays and their religious faith, the two were about as unlike as could be imagined.

Washington was descended from English aristocrats and never knew poverty. Lincoln was of humble origin and never knew wealth. Washington, from what we know of him, was rather good looking, dignified and conservative. Lincoln was unusually homely, informal and somewhat radical for his day.

While Washington wrote and spoke effectively he was no match for the eloquent Lincoln who was master of pen and platform.

The lives of these two men thus prove that it isn't important whether a man is born in a castle or cabin, of poverty or wealth. What does count is his character, his courage and capacity for greatness. We are indeed fortunate that Washington and Lincoln were great enough for the great challenge of their times. Because they measured up, America stands today.

'Kon-Tiki' Reviewed by Decoto Discussion Group

By ETHEL AVILLA

Mrs. Clifford Johnson led a discussion of the great and popular sea saga "Kon-Tiki" last Wednesday when the members of the Decoto Discussion Group met at the home of Mrs. Manuel Fontes in Mission San Jose.

Thor Heyerdahl, the author, and his five scientist companions, undertake a daring expedition in their raft constructed of balsa logs to prove the author's theory that the original settlers of the Polynesian Islands had come from Peru and not the Orient as is generally believed. Investigators in all branches of science have never agreed as to the origin of the island people.

Heyerdahl believes the early South Americans had sailed or drifted there with the Humbolt current which sweeps westward and then south below the equator. He found traces in culture, mythology and language in Peru comparable to that in Polynesia. Wth his imagination fired by these findings he began to dig deeper to identify the place of origin of the tribal god Tiki.

"Kon-Tiki" is the result of an amazing trip over thousands of miles of unchartered sea. The author's description of the sea and marine life are as beautiful as they are simple. The book made interesting material for discussion.

Mrs. Dora Mae Scudder will be hostess to the group in March. Mrs. Bernie Joseph, who will be leader for that month, has chosen Kay Summersby's biography, "Eisenhower was My Boss."

Vacation in Paradise

Mrs. Irene Henderson of Niles returned from a three weeks vacation in Paradise last Sunday evening.

Visitors from Berkeley

Their time was spent with Ronald's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sylvestri, and Mrs. Sylvestri's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice O'Brien.

Candle light ceremonies were performed in the cafeteria by Miss Bond and a group around a beautiful Founders' Day cake. Mrs. Bessie Olace was program chairman for the day and was honored by receiving the Life Membership.

Election of officers was in order during the meeting and were chosen as follows: president, Mrs. X. Stone; first vice-president, Mrs. Manuel Guardanapo; second vice-president, Mrs. Gus Robertson; recording secretery, Mrs. William Maloney; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Raymond Bass; treasurer, Mrs. Don Pressley; auditor, Mrs. Ed Hughes; historian, Mrs. Charles Brewer; parliamentarian, Mrs. Thomas Pereira.

The FARMERS CORNER

by Ralph H. Taylor
Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

MARKETING PROGRAM

Marketing order programs, under both state and federal laws, are instituted by producers and handlers of particular farm commodities to raise unduly depressed prices. Because of this fact, some consumers get the idea that these programs are schemes to force the public to pay higher prices than they should.

This conclusion is not true, as the facts abundantly prove. Both state and federal statutes authorizing marketing programs permit use of measures limiting the volume of the commodity marketed only so long as the price is below parity or an equivalent.

AID INDVIDUAL FARMERS

As Guy Black, University of California College of Agriculture, points out:

"Market programs . . . permit a number of free and independent individuals to do some of the things that they would be able to do if they were in fact united under one management."

Producers can do only some of the things under a market order they would be able to do if a single management controlled all of the production of a particular commodity.

The very nature of farming, with production subject to the hazards of weather, pests, and uncertain seasonal labor supply, imposes handicaps upon the farmer that are largely unknown to the manufacturers of most consumer goods. To overcome some of these handicaps, farmers employ marketing orders. They seek to regulate the flow of the product being marketed to avoid bultting the market, regulate the quality of the product to assure the consumer receiving acceptable merchandise, and stimulate consumer demand through trade promotion, education, and advertising.

FEW CROPS AFFECTED

Of California's some 220 agricultural crops, less than 40 are marketed under marketing order programs. Two-thirds of these provide principally for maintenance of minimum standards of quality; eliminating substandard or immature products. A third of them provide for surplus controls, or the regulation of the volume of product being marketed. A number authorize limited product and market research.

Black points out the marketing programs to be effective must be based upon sound economics and must have cooperative participation of the producers upon sound economics and must have the cooperative participation of the producers and handlers affected.

Even then, he says, "the most we can ever expect is what it would be reasonable to expect a single, unified management to be able to do and, of course, even a monopoly cannot come out on top of every situation."

What he means, of course, is that in the end the public's reaction to the product and its price determines whether or not the producer-handler group operating under a market order has acted wisely. The public just doesn't buy a particular commodity if it is priced out of line or the quality is unacceptable.

A successfully operated market program must protect the public interest as well as serve the best interests of producers.

'OUR MISS BROOKS' PLAYING TONIGHT

Last night's first performance of "Our Miss Brooks," Senior Class play at the Washington Union High School, was a smashing success.

Curtain time tonight (Friday), for the last staging of this three-act comedy, is 8 o'clock. General admission is 60 cents and students admission 25 cents.

The leading role of Miss Brooks is portrayed by Emily Jane Scott. She very aptly characterizes the slightly daffy English teacher. Other leads are played by Nancy Lloyd, Pat Collins, Martin Samman, Bob Lewis and Vernon Bradley.

Vondell Mings and Audrey Turnbow play the parts of two school teachers. Dorothy Roney plays the role of Mrs. Allen, the president of the school board. Other members of the cast contributed to the play's success with their fine performances.

Mr. J. Roberts is to be congratulated for his direction, Miss Audrey Carmody for the supervision of the costumes, and Miss Dorothy Czerny for her work with the settings and decorations.

ARABIAN NIGHT'S PAGEANT AT DATE FESTIVAL

DATE FESTIVAL

By ROGER COOKE

All fairs are fun, but the one held annually at Indio has an exotic and carefree flavor all its own. Officially titled the Riverside County Fair and National Date Festival, this unique celebration will sound the opening salute in 1952's parade of county exhibits. Our hunch is that those lucky enough to get out to the desert oasis for the festivities will remember this one long after some larger fairs are forgotten.

The Date Festival's rapidly growing popularity can be measured by the rise in attendance from 45,000 in 1947 to 146,786 in 1951. An estimated 160,000 merry-makers and sightseers are slated to take in this year's doings. Opening with a grand parade at 10:30 on Feb. 19, the tents will be silently folded the following Sunday night, Feb. 24, when the local citizen will take off his aba—a crossword puzzle word meaning Arabian gown—and Indio will become again a normal American city.

MISER—PHILANTHROPIST

By NICHOLS FIELD WILSON

The life of James Lick presents a strange and weird study in contradictions. He possessed the touch of a Midas and the instincts of a miser. Yet it cannot truthfully be said that his was a miser's soul. Although he was content to live poorly in the poorest room of his own hotel, then the finest and richest in San Francisco, this amazing man actually gave away his fortune of about four million dollars before his death. There are numerous misers who bequeath startling sums upon their decease: there are few indeed who saw fit to implement the dissipation of their fortune before drawing their last breath.

Lick was born in 1796. His birthplace was Fredericksburg, Lebanon County, Pennsylvania. Little is known of his boyhood save that he received very little schooling, and was apprenticed to a Hanover Cabinetmaker at an early age. In the light of his later years it is remarkable to recount that he was an ardent craftsman; an artist of superb skill. It is told of him that he could fashion a bureau drawer with such fine precision that the wooden masterpiece would hold water as surely as a copper kettle.

JAMES LICK

While he still resided in Fredericksburg, romance came to him for the first time in his lonely life. He fell in love with one Barbara Snavely who appears to have been his only sweetheart in fact; Barbara gave birth to a boy, whom she named John Henry Lick. Lick never denied the child, and eventually made formal provision for him in his will.

Some years later he is presumed to have fallen in love with the daughter of a rich mill owner, and to have asked for her hand in marriage. Little is known of this period of his life but the story persists that he was savagely rebuked by her proud father. In any event, Lick had nothing more to do with affairs of the heart.

Withdrawn into himself, he devoted his life to the making of money. Whatever he touched turned to gold. As a piano maker and salesman he spent some time in South America, where he must have made huge profits. In 1847 he appeared in Yerba Buena, a straggling colony of crude shacks soon to know world-wide fame as San Francisco. Here he began to buy real estate with a lavish hand. Although he was on the envied "ground floor" of the great Gold Rush two years later, he had little to do with it. Lick was no prospector. His own shrewd sense of values, coupled with his close-mouthed solitude, provided him with all the gold he needed.

For $300 he bought the lots on the west side of Montgomery between Post and Sutter where he built the famous Lick House. Here, in the midst of his own created luxury, he lived in squalor, unwashed, untended, unloved. He drove about the streets behind a rickety horse whose harness was held together with bits of wire and string. He took no part in the riotous social life of the San Francisco of that day.

He died in 1876, at the age of 80. Two years before he had set in motion the grandiloquent

Magazine California NOTES

A nature food lover from Livermore wrote Magazine California this week, praising us for running advertising on dates, which she calls "organically grown food." "Practically all our food," she says, "is bombarded with chemicals of one kind and another."

One of the 44 California newspapers featuring Magazine California is the Indio Date Palm, published in the heart of Coachella Valley, California's date empire. In this issue is featured a story on the National Date Festival, held annually at Indio.

Both E. F. Shields and the Lee Andersons, pioneer Coachella date growers, are regular advertisers in Magazine California.

Another nature food, milk, is also featured in this issue in the first of a series of educational ads by the California Dairy Industry advisory board.

Who's California's youngest bandit? An 8-year-old in Banning recently burglarized two stores for a total of $150 before being nabbed. Got to the loot by breaking rear windows. Nobody knows what makes kids act up. Spanking is the lowest form of discipline, in opinion of Allan G. Burt, Coachella Valley High teacher. "The highest goal," Burt says, "is to train a child to say, 'I want to do what is right because it makes me feel good inside.'" The Reverend Charles L. Conder, Thermal, goes on same theory. "The more the child learns to give of himself," says Rev. Conder, "the more of a person he becomes."

Mrs. Nicholas Zbitnoff, Ukiah, puts it this way: "It's the parents' job to bring up the child with the help of the schools, not the schools' job to bring up the child with the help of the parents." Lee Lykens told parents in Niles that all children are musical. Lykens has never heard kid next door work out on bass drum.

LAPIDARY

A lapidary is one who cuts, polishes and engraves precious stones. That describes exactly the work and pleasure of Mrs. William Bouton. Mrs. Bouton became interested in this craft through her husband, a cabinet maker who began to collect semi-precious stones about twenty years ago. In 1945, this hobby became their joint career. They outfitted part of their Atascadero home with all the tools of their new vocation. Now highly skilled with the special saws, grinders, polishers and drills, Mrs. Bouton concentrates on designing personalized jewelry and inlaid belts. Work that would be back breakingly tedious for those not suited to it, gem cutting has endless fascination for those who love it. This is not a career for a girl who needs talk, people and movement. But for those, like Mrs. Bouton, who can visualize the finished product in a rough piece of stone, it offers many rewards. Assuming a basic talent, requirements are patience, dexterity and imagination. A calling more than a trade, this work demands such a long and arduous apprenticeship that girls merely looking for occupation should try something else. Advantages: Can live wherever you please. Can climb as high as talent will take you. An outlet for self expression. If you love this work, you may learn to make a living from it. If you go into it merely for a living, you will probably fail.

Mother Lode

Editor's Note:

This is first of a series of three articles on California's fabulous Argonaut region.

By EVALYN SLACK GIST

The Argonaut region of California's Golden Era is divided into three parts; the Southern Mines or Mother Lode, the Northern Diggings and the Trinity Mines. The Mother Lode, extending from Coloma south to Mariposa, is the classic section encompassing the discovery site where James Marshall found the golden grains that so profoundly affected the destiny of the state.

The Northern Diggings reach upstate from Coloma to Downieville and the Trinity Mines begin at Shasta, six miles west of Redding and take in Weaverville as well as Igo and Ono.

Detours from 99

You don't have to explore the old country in great gulps. Short detours from many points along U.S. 99 will pick up a town or two.

By leaving U. S. 99 at Modesto and rejoining it at Stockton you can take in Knights Ferry, Sonora, Columbia, Angels Camp, Mokelumne Hill and Jackson, covering less than 150 miles although you'll probably travel at least fifty more when the romance of the Golden Era gets into your blood. Watch for square frame houses, old stone buildings and iron doors. You'll read a tangled architectural story as you travel along for each structure grew out of remembered images in the mind of the builder who had crossed a continent or even a sea.

Knights Ferry

Knights Ferry was an early ferry across the Stanislaus River between Stockton and the Southern Mines. The covered bridge, a copy of one designed by Ulysses S. Grant, is a landmark built in 1864. Locust pines or trenails (pronounced trunnels) hold the upper timbers together. The fire house, sheltering a hose cart and ladders, and the Grant house are both 1854 vintage.

You can detour to Copperopolis for another famous Covered Bridge before traveling on to Sonora. It crosses the Stanislaus near the site of Bret Harte's famous story "Poker Flat."

Sonorian Camp

Sonora, far from a ghost today, was called Sonorian Camp in 1848 because, of the 5000 miners who jammed the narrow streets, the majority were Mexicans from Sonora. Sonorian Camp was one of the rowdiest of all the diggings along the Mother Lode. By November of that first year half the population had scurvey so a town government was organized to establish a hospital. It is said the sick were treated with raw potatoes at $1.50 a pound and lime juice at $5.00 a bottle.

Yankees Profited

Although it was the Mexicans who sniffed out the gold and the Chili miners who discovered the richest pocket mine in the Mother Lode (Big Bonanza) it was the Yankees who profited. The newly organized government levied a $20.00 tax on every foreigner. They organized an army that one night marched into the already uneasy foreign sections. When dawn came the Yankees had the town. The Big Bonanza on Piety Hill, which three Yankees had acquired for a trivial sum, yielded $160,000 in a single day and $500,000 the first week.

Washington Street, a part of the 49er Highway, takes you through the main business section, past the St. James Church at the corner of Snell Street and, farther along, the Italia Hotel, once the Doctor Lewis G. Gunn adobe. There is little of the town's colorful past visible to the casual traveler but romance lingers for those who care to ferret it out.

Wells Fargo Building

Columbia, set aside as a State Monument a few years ago, boasted 20,000 inhabitants in the late 1850's. Known as the "Jewel of the Argonaut Age" and the "Gem of the Southern Mines" it was larger than Sacramento and at one time was prominently mentioned as its rival for the seat of government. The Wells Fargo Express building, the Fallon Theater, the old red brick schoolhouse across from the cemetery with the quaint epitaphs are unchanged. The ancients sitting beneath the ailanthus (China blue trees of heaven) might well be discussing the election of President Pierce.

MARK TWAIN COUNTRY

Cross the Stanislaus River and drive to the top of Jackass Hill where Mark Twain lounged during the winter of 1862-63 in the Gillis "boys" cabin. It is said 200 jackasses could often be counted on the hill in a single night when the packers camped and swapped yarns.

Don't pass up Angels Camp, old enough behind modern facades. It is best known today for the jumping frog contest held in May, based on the ageless yarn spun by Mark Twain in his "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." Do take in Cherokee Flat famed for its Calaveras skull hoax, perpetrated in 1866 when a skull, unearthed in the Mattison mine was declared to be Pliocene.

BRET HARTE MEMORIES

Mokelumme Hill and Jackson are closely associated historically with shades of Breat Harte lingering in Jesus Maria, Whiskey Slide and Poverty Flat. It is claimed Moke Hill miners once killed a man every week for 17 weeks. On the site of Chinatown, long since destroyed by fire, a thousand Chinese once burned punk in their joss houses and, according to local tales, sold slave girls in their opium dens.

JACKSON QUARTZ MINE

Jackson, renowned for the deepest quartz gold mines on the North American continent, has winding streets laid out, legend relates, by inebriated prospectors following their burros. Between 1848-51 Jackson was an important point on the Carson Pass Emigrant Trail. So many bottles collected at the overnight camps it was named Bottileas.

Aggressive settlers made the overnight stop the county seat in 1851 in a characteristic manner. While a group kept the county officers occupied, two men from Jackson whisked the county archives, seals and other paraphernalia from Double Springs. A year later Mokelumme Hill won the seat with a connived election but a decade later Jackson rewon it in a legal manner.

You reach Stockton from Jackson via State 88. Toward the north lies Coloma with the 49er Highway liberally sprinkled with camps that played a mighty part in the history of California.

Double Duty Apple Crisp

First ,prepare the filling: Pare, core and quarter 6 to 8 large tart apples. Add ¼ cup water, cover and simmer until tender. Mash slightly. Then measure 2½ to 3 cups of the applesauce. Add ¾ cup regular C and H brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg and ½ teaspoon cloves. Set applesauce filling aside while you make the crust.

¾ cup soft shortening (part butter for flavor)
1 cup C and H Brown Sugar, firmly packed.
1¾ cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1½ cups uncooked rolled oats

Cream shortening and brown sugar. Blend in flour, soda and salt. Then stir in rolled oats and mix well. Spread half the mixture in a greased 13x9 inch pan. Flatten with hands to cover bottom of pan. Spread with cooled filling, then cover with remaining crumb mixture, patting lightly. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Cut into generous squares and serve with a spoonful of whipped cream or ice cream. Serves 12 to 15. To serve this dessert to 6 or 8 for two meals, serve half while still warm with top milk or cream. The for lunch or dinner the next day, cut the remainder into domino-sized pieces and dust with powdered sugar. Makes 30 to 40 crunchy fruited cookies.

ENJOY INEXPENSIVE PRIZE-WINNING ORANGE MARMALADE

It's Easy to Make Anytime with This Simple Recipe

6 Medium Sized Oranges (2 lbs. sliced)
6 Cups Water
½ Cup M.C.P. Lemon Juice (About 6 lemons)
1 Package (3½-oz.) M.C.P. Jam and Jelly Pectin
9½ Level Cups Sugar (Measured ready for use)

1. Cut oranges in cartwheels with very sharp knife to make slices thin as possible. Discard the large flat peel ends. Sliced fruit should weigh 2 pounds.
2. Put sliced fruit in 8-quart kettle. Add the water and lemon juice.
3. Bring to a quick boil, boil gently for 1 hour (uncovered). If peel is not tender in 1 hour, boil until tender.
4. Measure the cooked material. Due to boiling, the volume will be reduced. Add water to make total peel and juice exactly 7 level cups.
5. Put back in kettle. Stir in M.C.P. Pectin; continue stirring and bring to a full boil.
6. Add sugar (previously measured). Stir gently until it has reached a full rolling boil, and BOIL EXACTLY 4 MINUTES. Remove from fire; skim and stir by turns for 5 minutes.
7. Pour into jars. If you use pint or quart jars, seal hot and invert jars on lids until Marmalade begins to set. Then, shake well and set jars upright. This keeps the peel evenly distributed throughout.

NOTE: This recipe works equally well with Navel Oranges or Valencias. When either variety is overripe and peel is soft, use ¾ cup lemon juice instead of ½ cup. (Be sure to discard any seeds.) Recipe Orange Marmalade. (Cut out and keep this recipe.)

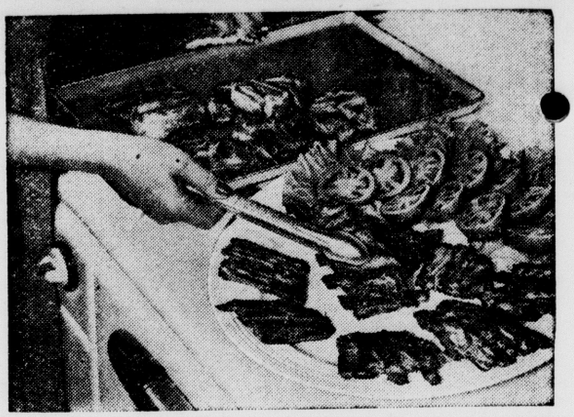
Sweet-Sour Barbecued Spareribs



No need to wait for the garden grill. These crisp, tender ribs are done in the oven of the kitchen range.

RICH FLAVOR IN THE NEW DARK BROWN SUGAR

Yes, there is now on the market a new C and H Dark Brown sugar to add a mellow molasses tang to your favorite brown sugar recipes. Use it occasionally in place of the regular brown sugar for an entirely new "smack the lips" flavor. If you're from the East, you know what a big difference there is when you use dark brown sugar instead of regular brown when you want to bring out that rich molasses flavor in gingerbreads, baked beans, and other foods.

Try the new C and H Dark Brown Sugar in these crusty barbecued spareribs. You'll be amazed at the difference it makes in your sauce. You do them in the oven, but you can serve them to a hungry group indoors or out. They take a bit of watching, but are ever-so-easy to do and ever-so-good to eat.

And to top it off here is a thrifty dessert that is big enough for the crowd. In this recipe you use the regular brown sugar because you do not want to accent the molasses flavor.

Barbecued Spareribs

3 to 4 pounds spareribs
1/3 cup C and H Dark Brown Sugar
1 cup vinegar
1/3 cup catsup
1/3 cup water
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons horseradish
1 teaspoon salt
generous dashes of Tabasco sauce or cayenne
1 small onion, grated

Have your meat man saw the spareribs across the middle so you can cut them apart into serving-sized pieces. Cut off extra fat and arrange in a single layer in a large shallow pan, meaty side up. Roast in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 20 minutes. While they roast, combine remaining ingredients into a sauce and heat just to boiling. Reduce oven heat to 300 degrees. Baste ribs with about half of the sauce. Let ribs roast, turning and basting occasionally. At the end of a half hour, pour on remaining sauce. Then bake another 30 minutes until ribs are well done. Serves 6. Double recipe as needed and according to size of your oven.

Much Like Milk

Cottage cheese is much like milk in food value and should be used generously in summer meals. Use it sometimes as a pancake filling and serve with sour cream or maple syrup or fruit preserves; let it accompany fruit and vegetable salads. It also makes a good sandwich filling when it is teamed with chopped radishes, cucumbers, and green pepper.

Achimenes Ideal for Hanging Baskets

Achimenes are charming summer flowering plants that may be grown to perfection in a location having light shade and constant moisture, such conditions as you would give the tuberous begonia.

They are ideal plants for pot or for hanging basket culture, and may be grown in the house, glasshouse or in the open. For best results start the bulbs about Feb. 1 to March 15 in soil containing a liberal amount of leafmold, but no fertilizer.

After the plants are up a light top dressing of pulverized cow manure may be applied. Water carefully, never allowing the top soil to dry out. Plant out into their permanent location after the weather is settled. They bloom May to November.

Bare Spots in Lawn Need Extra Attention

Bare, brown and dead areas in the lawn should be spaded up and prepared for reseeding. A little extra fertilizer is applied after seeding to make sure there are no deficiencies. If the spots are very hard, some organic matter is added and thoroughly mixed with the soil.

If insects are part of the lawn problem, the appropriate insecticide should be applied. Japanese beetle grubs are destroyed by DDT, chlordane or lead arsenate. DDT will also destroy chinch bug, and chlordane will eliminate ants for a month or more.

Evergreens Need Transplanting as Soon as They Are Dug

Evergreens should be transplanted as soon as possible after they are dug. If this is not possible, soak the ball of earth and roots, burlap and all, in a tub of water for five minutes or more if the soil is dry. After watering stand the evergreen in a sheltered place away from the sun until transplanting.

When filling in the soil around the ball, use the garden hose to "puddle" the soil. The water, thus fills all of the air pockets and gives the evergreen firm support. After filling in, large upright trees should be tied or staked to prevent their swaying back and forth.

In 544 days of uncontrolled flow, an oil well drilled in Kern County poured out an estimated 8,250,000 barrels of oil.

Foxgloves Good Citizens

Foxgloves are one of the best background plants for late spring. The Giant Shirley hybrids, with flower heads over three feet long and an all-over stem length of six feet, belong in every garden. They come in shades of shell-pink, light and deep rose, and white. The Lutzii hybrids, another beautiful variety, have soft, apricot,colored flowers. They naturalize themselves in most gardens.

CALIFORNIA AND CALIFORNIA BOOKS AND AUTHORS

Book for Trout Lovers

By NICHOLS FIELD WILSON

Here is a book about the kind of fishing to warm the cockles of a trout lover's heart, no matter where he lives.

It is a companion volume to the author's highly successful Waters of the Golden Trout Country, extending the range of that book with a description of the astonishing, back-of-beyond fishing to be discovered in Yosemite Park, the Emigrant Basin, and the mighty King's Canyon National Park, a fly-fisherman's paradise of snow-fed lakes and streams.

Fighting Trout

One of the first books devoted to West Coast trout fishing, YOSEMITE AND KINGS CANYON TROUT will be welcomed not only by California's trout fisherman but by everyone who read Charles McDermand's previous book and by all sportsmen who delight in reading of accessible waters inhabitated by fighting trout. For in these colorful and deeply satisfying pages are the personal experiences of a skilled fisherman and a delightful writer who, pack on his back, leads you through three hundred miles of trails to the unspoiled haunts of Rainbows, Loch Levens, Eastern Brooks, and Goldens. Starting in the spring when waters are high and snow-banks deep, he fishes through the summer and into the late fall when snow begins to fly, taking you to blue, isolated lakes and rushing white-water streams where trout of many breeds flash at fly or spinner.

Of deep interest to the experienced woodsman and especially to the novice back-packer are two chapters which are chock-full of useful information on back-packing equipment, food, fishing tackle, and methods of Sierra fishing. A complete grub and equipment list is broken down to pounds and ounces; and notes on lightweight foods and experience-seasoned advice on what equipment to take and what to leave at home are given.

For Sierra Fisher

In addition, a complete alphabetical list of the lakes in Yosemite Park and in the Emigrant Basin is included (those for Kings Canyon National park are given in "Waters of the Golden Trout Country") with the breeds of trout inhabitating them, their altitudes and locations, and other information necessary to anyone planning a trip to those areas. And plan a trip you will, after reading "Yosemite and Kings Canyon Trout," a narrative of high interest to those who fish the Sierra Nevada mountains of California and also to trout fishermen the world over, wherever they may be. Map end papers and photographs round out and enhance this invaluable book.

Both on these books are products of the G .P. Putnam's Sons, New York publishers. Priced at $3.50 each. Our book department will fill your order.

WHAT PEOPLE WILL DO:

Princess Margaret of the English Royal Family will marry the Earl of Dalkeith by late summer! . . . Clint Phillipy and Phil Phelps, who have introduced many foreign delicacies to the American public, will soon market the famous Continental sandwich spread "Cheval" made from rare spices, garlic and horsemeat! This food supplement will be very low in price, and will find fast favor with everyone! . . . One of the most shocking scandals ever to grace the front pages of our newspapers will take you completely unawares during the month of April! . . . Look for beer to advance one to 2 cents per bottle! . . . Joe Louis will seek a new exhibition bout for charity next month! . . . Watch for a very wild March!

FOR WOMEN ONLY:

Katherine Kimbrough (the Princess Karah) will soon make public her priceless secret of her clear, milk white skin! It consists of a mild massage of the face and neck with liquid castile soap (you place a bar of castile soap in a cup of hot water and let it dissolve into a jelly) followed by a hot pack for three minutes. You divide an egg, placing an even mask of the yolk on the face and neck to dry for at least 20 minutes, followed by the white of the egg spread on in the same manner. When this dries, remove both with luke warm water, followed by an ice pack of three minutes. If this is done but once a month, you will find that your skin will remain clear, smooth and radiant.

WHAT YOU WILL LIKE

The book shelf holds a book which should be read by all Americans and that is Kenyon J. Scudder's "Prisoners Are People" which is the inside story of China, the prison without walls or guns or any of the restrictions usually found in a place of this kind, how it came into being, how it operates and what amazing success it has had . . . Each man makes his own decision of whether to escape or not, and if he rejects chance after chance to escape he has taken a great moral step. The men who fulfill their debt to society return time and time again to visit this model prison, show a deep and almost religious reverence. I have seen this model prison, and in contrast to many other penal institutions, it is a wonderful humanitarian gesture in a dark world!

NEW IN STYLE

Look for a new vogue for print flannelette night gowns and robes for less than three dollars, with the imprint of famous love scenes in history!... The latest hostess fad will be the "book" party, where each member brings a book as a gift to the local hospital's library for the patients! . . . The latest reducing diet will consist of spinach and egg!

The California Palace of the Legion of Honor at San Francisco is dedicated to the memory of California soldiers killed in World War I.

The California State Library has one of the only two complete files of "The Californian," first published at Monterey, August 15, 1846.

Festival . . . .

Advance figures indicate that the date festival will have enough of the required elements that comprise a first class fair to put it in the Big Time. There will be the complete live stock show, the horse show, the citrus and other agricultural exhibits and, of course, a complete junior fair department. In size, however, this fair will remain respectable rather than outstanding.

What gives the Date Festival its special attraction, and makes it well worth your while, is the beauty of its mid-winter desert setting, its exotic flavor and its "Arabian Night Pageant."

This lavish spectacle takes place nightly at 6:45 on the really impressive $25,000 stage, and the scented desert night gives the production a tropic starlit backdrop of magical appeal. Oriental dancing girls and camel caravans and all the colorful ingredients of an Eastern Potentate's King come to vibrant life in captivating splendor. This year's revue is based on a script by Sarah Farrar of Indio. G. I. Christienson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is the Sultan, and home grown Coachella Valley girls demonstrate that Arabia doesn't have anything to make Riverside County belles feel envious.

Desert Oddities

Within its palm setting there are many desert oddities not found in other fairs, and these, along with the camel races and the beautiful surrounding countryside give the fair a flavor all its own. The Date Festival's wide draw is shown in the statistics that more than 66 per cent of the attendance is from farther than 100 miles away.

No fair can get to the top on mere tinsel and atmosphere, and this one's going to have a good deal more than pretty trimmings. There will be approximately 4000 awards totaling nearly $55,000 in premium prizes, and that's strong assurance of a good turn-out in competitive exhibits.

plans for the distribution of his vast wealth. Had his death not interferred it is probable that he would have given most of it away while he still lived. Such was his evident intention.

His sound commonsense seemed to go awry when he drew up his list of a score or more of benefactions. To some he allotted vastly too much, to others not enough. He made the amazing discovery that there were untold difficulties in the mere giving away of a fortune. But he went ahead with the same dogged persistence which had characterized his amassing of the money.

The final turn of the wheel brought the great Lick Observatory to the fore as the most significant of all his many gifts. It is fitting that his body should rest beneath the supporting pier of the telescope. Great discoveries have been made at Lick Observatory.

It is even conceivable that someday some scientist peering into the void may discover a cosmic clue which shall shed further light on the amazing mind of man. Even a mind as dark and devious as that of James Lick.

Girls Go for
Poodle-Dog Hair Cut

By HELEN WEILL,
Fashion Editor

Newer than even a new Spring hat—is a new hair cut! With two leading styles, one definitely for teen-ager only. The other, some say is for both Mi-Lady and her daughter.

The style that is limited to the teen-ager, is the polished smooth pony-tail. With the tresses pulled back almost tight from the forehead, and no part, or a center part. Then tight against the crown of the head, this scoopfull of tresses is cinched in snugly, so that not a wisp escapes. And out from this saddle-tight cinch is the tail of hair. This is often tucked in, like the "paige boy" style of not too long ago. But extending out from the head, instead of close to the throat, the appearance is quite different.

TIP FOR TEEN-AGER

In fact, so different that only the teen-ager can get away with it. With her healthy glowing skin, red-red lips, and clear eyes her natural beauty is enhanced by this sudden kind of a hair style.

Here's a tip for teen-ager: hair must be well-brushed and given frequently shampoos, or this pony-tail can be limp and ugly in no time. The secret of its success is in the clean glow, and unusual length of the hair.

And the lesson from great grandmother was that hair could not be brushed too much. Washing, too, is a must the minute the hair appears the least bit droopy. And then brushing it dry gives a new gloss and almost a wave. If the hair seems to bend that way.

COURAGE, GIRLS

And now for Mi-Lady. Well, with courage and an open mind to be willing to wait for a change in style as long as five to six months. Since hair grows about half an inch a month, six months would be required to return to the original style. However, it is quite possible that this new and jolly Poodle hair cut will be so becoming and easy to handle, that the style could go on and on. At least on, until Dame Fashion dreams about another animal line to copy.

For from the Horse, or Pony-tail to the Poodle cut is quite a jump. And yet, the Poodle must have something. For one large Beauty Salon in New York, right off of Fifth Avenue, has claimed that four out of five of their hair cuts are Poodles.

HATS FOR POODLES

As for hats. Don't worry, the designers are on the toes there too. They are actually creating dashing little numbers for Poodles only! Several have worked out anchors to hold the hats down, that are a form of ornament on the bonnet. Others are modeling stunning open crowns, through which those perky little curls peak through.

Genuine jewelry and costume jewelry accept Poodles with great relief. For the short cut, and full ear exposure makes a lovely ear lobe cry for an ear screw or dangle of some size.

The curly hair high above the collar too, is a natural foil for lovely chokers or dog collars.
